

12.8.2024

Author

MASSCHELEIN, Jan (SIMONS, Maarten)

Title

The university in the ears of its students : on the power, architecture and technology of university lectures / Jan Masschelein & Maarten Simons

Publication year

2014

Source/Footnote

In: Die Idee der Universität - revisited / Norbert Ricken ; Hans Christoph Koller ; Edwin Keiner (Hrsg.). - Wiesbaden : Springer VS, 2014. - S. 173 - 192

Inventory number

35898

Keywords

Hochschule und Staat : allgemein ; Hochschulreform : allgemein

Abstract

There is a growing discussion on various levels regarding the future of the university and especially also regarding its public role. This discussion relates to tendencies of privatization, economic globalization and the appearance of the so-called entrepreneurial university (including the entrepreneurial academic and student), but also to the implications of the rapid developments regarding the information and communication technologies (ICT) and the so-called learning sciences (e. g. Barnett 2011; Brandt 2011; Collini 2012; Docherty 2011; Elkana & Klöpffer 2012; Fethke & Policano 2012; Holmwood 2011, to mention just a few recent ones). In this discussion functionalist (sociological/economical) and idealistic (philosophical) understandings of the university prevail. In this paper we want to offer some elements of a different approach. (HRK / Abstract übernommen)

Signature

H 07 IDEE